

Some major TV people helped Chelsea get her TV major.

Chelsea Winstanley has a Bachelor of Communications – majoring in television. It's a tough degree, so she asked two of TV's tough cookies, John Campbell and Carol Hirschfeld for their professional insights. They were more than happy to help. That's because the AUT Communications degree has forged strong partnerships with the media industry. And the media industry has the utmost respect for AUT graduates (because many of its employees were once AUT Communication students themselves).

These partnerships allowed Chelsea to work within the broadcast media while she was studying. So when she graduated she already had a thorough understanding of the industry she now loves. A Media Peace Foundation Award, an associate producer for Kiwa Film & Television, and directing and producing documentaries are proof of that.

If you've been thinking about a career in the creative and innovative field of Communications, then get in contact with us:

0800 AUT UNI
WWW.AUTCOMMUNICATIONS.AC.NZ

AUT COMMUNICATIONS